

Problem Statement

Busy college students often struggle with finding quick, simple and inexpensive meal ideas due to tight schedules and limited cooking skills, leading them to rely on unhealthy or costly food options.

Details

College students often don't have enough time, money, or cooking skills to prepare quick and affordable meals. Without viable, accessible solutions, students often fall back on unhealthy or costly food options, which can negatively impact their health and budget.